Peace of mind: 24 hours a day

Registered nurses are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week. They'll help you determine your next steps — whether to call your doctor or head to the emergency room. In nonemergency situations, a nurse can talk with you about your treatment options and tell you what you can do at home to feel better sooner.

The goal is to help you make the most informed decisions about your health. This service is available to you at no added cost, and all calls are kept confidential.

It's not just for emergencies

You don't have to wait for an emergency to call the nurse line. From cold or flu-like symptoms to chronic conditions such as asthma or diabetes, the nurses can support you through it all:

- Understanding your health concern
- Getting more information
- Following through on treatment

You'll get fast, reliable health information you can count on while avoiding long waits at the emergency room or unnecessary trips to your doctor's office.

You can call the nurse line for:

- Health information
Nurses are available to answer your health care questions, whether they're as simple as how to take an infant's temperature or as complex as learning about a surgical procedure.
- Symptom management

- Audio health library
